DO NOT MISS...

The amounts of rosemary and thyme we see in this route. The Mediterranean climate in this area of the Pre-Pyrenees is ideal for these herbs.

DID YOU KNOW...

Roc de la Presó (or Picapoll) was used as a prison in the Carlist Wars? This rock is surrounded by large cliffs and there is a single access way, which made it ideal for use as a prision.

ROUTE DESCRIPTION

The route of Sant Honorat lets us discover one of the most spectacular sites of the Catalan Pre-Pyrenees: the mountains of Sant Honorat, a massif or calcareus origin that offers vertiginous cliffs, large high plateaus, and privileged views of the area.

From ❶ Hotel Can Boix follow the NW path. You immediately reach a fork where you follow the path up to ravine of Font Viva (NW). Soon you get to the ❷ crossroad of Sant Honorat and take the path on the right to the N. You start now the toughest stretch throughout this route. Within the next 1.5 km you will have to ascent over 330 m to reach the ❸ col of Sant Honorat.

From the col of Sant Honorat take the track leading towards Roques de Sant Honorat (W). When arriving at the end of it, take a tight path to N-NE to the ❹ viewpoint of Roc de la Presó. You are right now at the foot of the so called Picapoll or Roc de la Presó.

Come back to the end of the track and take now the path in direction to NW. You will pass through wooded and rocky stretches and shortly you will see a wall with a stone arcade. Follow the ascension to get to the top of the plateau of Sant Honorat. Cross the plateau and get to an impressive scarp with a depth of over 250 m. Turn left (W) until the ruins of ❺ Sant Honorat's chapel. Finally go to the ❻ N side of Roca de Sant Honorat. This is a spectacular place!

After walking through this wonderful plateau, go back to the col of Sant Honorat. Follow now the track to E -Serra de Cavallars-. You will soon arrive to the ❼ crossroad of Roc de Rombau that leads us to the ❽ viewpoint of Roc de Rombau. After enjoying the great views, come back to the crossroad.

Take now the small road descending to N. Follow the signals "Ruta de Sant Honorat" and "Castell-llebre" all along this road. This stretch offers beautiful views to the reservoir of Oliana. Go down and get to the foot of the Santa Maria de Castell-llebre Romanesque hermitage. Shortly up to a paving path reach the ❾ hermitage, which is located on a cliff and dominates the reservoir. Undo the paving path and go on the track to Peramola (S). Walk around Roc dels Moros and Roc de Rombau on its base and get back to ❶ Hotel Can Boix.
